

Contemporary MASTERCLASS

with Cameron Stedman

Cameron Stedman is a freelance dancer and choreographer, born and raised in Orlando, FL. From the age of 5, Cameron has been training in various dance forms such as ballet, contemporary, jazz, tap, and hip-hop. They are currently studying at Point Park University, where they will receive a BFA in Modern dance. They have been featured in the works of choreographers such as Al Blackstone, Twyla Tharp, Bob Fosse, and Christopher Huggins. Cameron has most recently performed the work of Jae Man Joo at The Joyce Theater in New York City. Along with these performances, Cameron assists and teaches for Revel Dance Convention as a part of the Pro Reveler of the Year scholarship. Cameron is constantly looking for creative projects that inspire and promote artistic growth.
